RANK VICE ADMIRAL NFFER-SEC. DANIELS

Urges Congress to Give This Title for Commander-in-Chief of Fleet

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—"This nation does not desire vice admirals in order to take precedence over officers of other navies," Secretary Daniels said today, "but rather to place our officers on an equality with foreign officers. Several instances have occurred which showed the urgent necessity for this rank in our dealings with other navies."

Mr. Daniels, further discussing his proposal to ask congress to create the rank of vice admiral, pointed out that at present vessels of three United States fleets were in positions where it would be greatly to American advantage to have vice admirals in command.

"We have always put officers in a third-grade position to handle first-grade work, and that it has been well handled is due to the force and strength of our commander-in-chief's personality. Despite the lack of assistance that title and recognized rank could give him."

The commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet is responsible for the safety of 30,000 officers and men and $250,000 worth of ships. Commanders-in-chief of our Pacific and Asiatic fleets have heavy responsibilities, and we need the grade of vice admiral not only for precedence, but also because we actually need them for more efficient command of fleets and squadrons in war."

to sea, with the result that much property is at the mercy of the high waves.

Houses Washed Out to Sea.

At Far Rockaway and Rockaway Beach many small houses have been washed out to sea, and for a time several of the large summer hotels were in danger. Hasty reinforcements of their foundations averted great loss. Most of the piers in the vicinity have been destroyed and many boats are lost.

Edgemere's entire water front is in peril, huge seas washing over the 15-foot bulkheads which protect the place. In what is known as Hammel's section, every bulkhead has been thrown down and many buildings are in danger of collapsing, due to "weakening of their foundations by the rushing water."

Late tonight the meadows north of Long Beach were under water, and it is feared that the pounding of the waves will break down bulkheads protecting High Point and Harvey Cedars.

Ohio and Pennsylvania Hit.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 3.—The storm which broke over eastern Ohio and western Pennsylvania last night increased in intensity as today wore on moving down into West Virginia and causing great damage to telegraph and telephone wires. Many communities were cut off because of the heavy snow, while others could be reached only by one shaky wire.

Snow fell steadily during the evening and the local weather bureau sent out a special warning to all railroad and river interests to prepare for a continuation of existing conditions until tomorrow when the mercury probably would drop to 22 degrees.

Fear of flood prevalent all day along the upper Ohio and the Monongahela and Allegheny rivers was dispelled by the prediction of lower temperature but craft in the lower harbor were made snug in anticipation of eventualities.

Stories of suffering and loss of life began to reach Pittsburgh during the day.

Railroads operated under difficulties, with trouble making the movement of trains uncertain. East of Pittsburgh it was snowing heavily in the mountains but trains were moving. In the Allegheny valley, traffic was almost at a standstill, while all railroad trains were from two to four hours late.

Tide Brings Ruin.

The rising of the tide at midnight brought new ruin to Seabright. The water swept across the railroad tracks in the heart of the town to the main street, which was flooded to the depth of two feet, and spread until all parts of the village were inundated. Before the tide had reached the flood stage, a current was flowing through doorways and highways from the ocean into the Shrewsbury river. 1,000 feet away. Cottages toppled over and fell as the waters undermined their foundations. Some of these were handsome and valuable summer residences.

So alarming was the situation that the townspeople generally an hour after midnight had boats in their yards ready for use should the water encroach further. At that time the tide seemed still to be rising but the wind was going down and shifting to the north. This change was welcomed, as it was believed that with the lessened velocity of the gale the danger would be over with the beginning of the ebb tide.

Heavy Gale on Coast.

CAPE MAY, Jan. 3.—The heavy northwest gale which prevailed here all day caused high water to wash out the trolley lines at Sewell's Point and Cape May Point. At Cape May City the tide cut across the ocean front boulevard and into the front yards of some cottages.

Atlantic City Suffers.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Jan. 3.—Damage to property estimated at $25,000 was wrought in a few hours along the front of Absecon Island which includes Atlantic City, Ventnor, Margate City and Longport, by an extraordinary high tide accompanied by a 40-mile gale today. There was an apprehension for a time as the ocean crept up to the streets of Atlantic City, breaking the center of Young's ocean pier, tearing down with it Capt. John L. Young's cottage which stood on the structure.

Longport, at the lower end of the island, was the worst sufferer. A small hospital for crippled children, uncoupled and uninhabited at present, toppled into the water. Some distance down the beach the waves surrounded the summer homes of many Philadelphians. The Pigeon hotel near Longport was undermined and sank in the sand.

Wind 60 Miles an Hour.

REHOBOTH, Del., Jan. 3.—The wildest storm that has struck this coast in a long time caused much damage along the beach from Cape Henlopen southward. The wind reached a velocity of 60 miles an hour, piling up huge waves that made serious inroads here. A stretch of land below this place a half mile in width, which separates the ocean from Rehoboth bay, was under water tonight. There were no buildings on the land.

More than a quarter of a mile of the board walk here was washed away and the water covered many of the street crossings of the town. Unless the water recedes it is feared that some of the summer cottages may be undermined.

It is feared the foundation of the light house at Cape Henlopen will be undermined unless the storm abates soon. The foundation has been weak for some time, due to shifting sands.

abandoned exit unknown and unguarded by the officers. The other is that he found a way into the lowest level of the mine and made his way out with a group of miners coming off shift.

At present the authorities are without a clue as to where to look further for the gunman. An attempt will be made to locate Shift Boss Sam Rogers who said he encountered Lopez in the Andy tunnel on December 11. After telling Sheriff Smith about the meeting Rogers suddenly left Bingham, saying he was afraid to reenter the mine.

Deadly Marksman.

Lopez was perhaps the most deadly marksman that ever faced a posse. He shot a revolver from the hip. To kill six men he fired only seven shots. Every bullet taking effect. Four bullets passed through the hearts of four victims. Two others entered close to the hearts of the other two. His bullets made four widows and 17 fatherless children. One child was born after the death of its father.

Among his victims was Chief of Police Grant of Bingham.

For the first week of the pursuit Lopez eluded seven sheriffs and over 200 deputies with baffling cunning. He finally backtracked and hid in the Utah Apex mine, where his presence would not have been suspected had he not been betrayed by a friend from whom he obtained food.

MINERS DEPORTED IN ROUTT COUNTY

fields tonight as a result of the proclamation and it was opinion of many that the situation would compose itself.

It was learned late tonight that the Taxpayers league also promulgated a proclamation addressed to the mine operators demanding that they obey the mining laws of the state in every detail and mentioned the necessity for the operators giving their employees the right to live outside the company boarding houses and trade at any store other than the company store.

STEAMBOAT SPRINGS, Jan. 3.—Seven members of the United Mine Workers of America charged with rioting and assault in connection with the Colorado miners' strike, were sent out of town today by the Routt County Taxpayers league.

The league then issued a proclamation announcing that it was the duty of the county to find work or leave. Frank Garner, a state organizer of the United Mine Workers, sent a telegram to President Wilson protesting against the action of the league.

The seven men were on trial in court here when a delegation from the league entered the court room and marched the defendants out with a notice that they must leave town.

Orders to Shoot to Kill.

DENVER, Jan. 3.—The report that seven striking miners had been deported from Steamboat Springs by the Routt County Taxpayers league and the remainder ordered to get work or leave the county created a stir at the district headquarters of the United Mine Workers of America here today.

"We have advised our men in Routt county to stand on their rights to refuse to be deported and to shoot to kill if any other than a bona fide peace officer attempts to interfere with them," said F. J. Doyle, secretary-treasurer of District 15.

If any member of members of this league attempt to enter the homes of our men or handle them roughly the striking coal miners will shoot to kill and being within their legal rights, the United Mine Workers of America will stand behind them in the end.

Any one who allows himself to be deported without having violated any law is not fit to be a citizen of any country, and I don't want him to come near me," said John R. Lawson, member of the international board.

BUSINESS MEN OPPOSE OUSTER OF LUMBER COS.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 3.—Committees from the Business Men's league and from the Commercial club of Kansas City, Mo., will go to Jefferson City next Tuesday to call to the attention of the supreme court the effect on the two cities if the ouster decree against certain lumber companies is enforced. The two committees will not discuss the legal phases of the matter with the supreme court, but will call attention to the importance of the lumber trade to the state, and will quote statistics to prove the loss to the two cities should the lumber companies leave the state.

CUSTOMS RETURNS TO BE THOROUGHLY REVISED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—A thorough revision of Customs returns will be undertaken immediately by a committee appointed today by Assistant Secretary Hamlin of the treasury. The last revision took four years, but Secretary Hamlin hopes the work can be done this time in 12 months. Many regulations made unnecessary by the tariff law, will be eliminated and others will have to be written.

GOVT. MAY TAKE UP STUDY OF PELLAGRA

Surgeon General Blue Says
Reports on Investigation
Before McAdoo

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—So alarming are the reports of the spread of pellagra, laid before Secretary McAdoo by Surgeon General Blue of the public health service, that congress probably will be urged during the present month to make a special appropriation to rent a hospital building in the south, establish laboratories there and make a study of the disease in all its phases.

Although pellagra is far more prevalent in the southeastern states, it is estimated that there have been more than 50,000 cases in the entire country, the disease having been found in 14 states and the District of Columbia. While pellagra has been recognized for several hundred years, it is still one of the most baffling diseases with which the medical profession deals. The public health service has been struggling with an investigation of pellagra since its discovery in this country a half dozen years ago, but the alarming extent to which it has spread has brought a flood of appealing letters to Secretary McAdoo and has led to determination to urge congress to act quickly.

Dejies Mandamus Writ in Closing Oregon Saloons

COPPERFIELD, Ore., Jan. 3.—Col. E. K. Lawson, who deposes martial law here yesterday, said the saloons and placed under the town officials for alleged obnoxiousness in violation of an ordinance regulating the sale of liquor, closed today an injunction, which sought to restrain him from keeping the saloons closed, and preventing the mayor and councilmen from fulfilling their respective functions. Colonel Lawson telegraphed to Governor West for reinforcements to the number of 50 militiamen.

"If Sheriff Rand comes up here from Baker and attempts to put me in jail," said the governor's representative, "I will have sufficient force to prevent his doing so."

Colonel Lawson appointed a provisional mayor today, and selected a councilman to serve temporarily, but announced that martial law would continue. Strict censorship of telephone and telegraph messages was enforced.

"ALEM, Ore., Jan. 3.—Pay no attention to any injunction or court order," was the message telegraphed by Governor West tonight to Colonel Lawson at Copperfield. "If any attorneys try to harass you, put them in jail."

Governor West instructed Colonel Lawson to bring his prisoners to Salem if he found such a course advisable.

"Colonel Lawson will be given all the reinforcements he needs," declared the governor.

PARLIAMENT TO BLAME FOR MILITANT TACTICS, SAYS GEORGE LANSBURY

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—Failure of members of the British parliament to keep their campaign promises is largely responsible for the "madness" of the militants, according to George Lansbury, a noted English suffragist, in an address delivered today at the City club. Mr. Lansbury, who is a member of parliament, freed himself from imprisonment for the use of alleged "seditious language" last July by a three-day hunger strike. He said that of the 670 members of the parliament, about 400 had pledged themselves in favor of woman suffrage, but had changed their minds since the election.

Asked whether the excesses of the English militants had not hurt the cause, Mr. Lansbury said: "Woman suffrage is either right or wrong, and what one man or woman does will not alter that fact."

MOYER PLANS TO RETURN TO STRIKE FIELD NEXT WEEK

MORGAN & CO. MAY REMAIN IN CONTROL OF THE STEEL TRUST

CHICAGO, Jan. 3.—Charles H. Moyer, president of the Western Federation of Miners, who was shot, beaten and expelled from Calumet, Mich., a week ago, plans to return to the strike region the first of next week. A meeting of the Michigan State Federation of Labor is to be held in Lansing on Jan. 4. Moyer plans to attend the executive council of the American Federation of Labor also will be present.

Moyer said that as soon as he could finish pressing business in the strike region he would call the meeting of the Western Federation of Miners, which had been appointed for the 2nd Monday in January at Denver, Colo., but which had to be postponed because of the attack on him in Hancock.

Renews Proposal to Operate. His proposition in relation to the mine operators of the copper region to submit all points in controversy to a board of arbitration to be composed of President Wilson and Governor Wilson of Michigan. Moyer said, in just a few words, that he was not in a position to write, two hours before he was attacked and beaten. Moyer said he approved the attitude of the striking and non-striking miners of the Western Federation in voting yesterday to strike unless federal investigation of the copper strike was instituted.

"I trust, however," he said, "that any more strikes may be averted. If we cannot obtain arbitration in any other way we may attempt to call a general strike in Michigan, but any more strikes will come only as our last resort."

Refuted Hinsley Story. "There is still before the mine owners our proposal to submit everything to a board of arbitration. We submit everything to the board of wages, hours, conditions and recognition of the union. We hold out nothing, but put the men's affairs without reserve in the hands of the board."

Referring to statements yesterday by Deputy Hinsley of Calumet in a telegram to Governor Ferris, that Hinsley had rescued Moyer from a mob bent on lynching him, Moyer said that Hinsley was in Moyer's room at the time of the attack, knew who shot him and superintended the whole affair. Moyer said he would be glad to cooperate with Special Prosecutor Nichols of Houghton county in investigating the attack.

"I assume that Mr. Nichols, as a public officer, is eager to do his duty," said Moyer. "He will soon have my assistance in his endeavor."

Moyer's surgeon said today that the pistol wound in the patient's back is healing without complication and that Moyer will be on his feet Monday.

MEAT IMPORTS ARE GREATLY INCREASED BY NEW TARIFF BILL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—The placing of beef on the tariff free list has resulted in a vast increase in the importation of foreign beef and meat products. During October and November, the department of agriculture reported nearly 18,000,000 pounds of meat and its products were brought from abroad. This is more than triple the amount imported for the whole of 1912.

The foreign beef and meat products are being rigidly inspected by the agents of the bureau of animal industry, who, during the two months, condemned 18,000 pounds.

Nearly half of the imports, or 8,000,000 pounds, came from Canada. Argentina supplied 6,000,000 pounds. Australia, 3,000,000, and Uruguay, 250,000.

HUNDREDS MEXICANS FLEE ACROSS BORDER

Laredo, the Mexican border town, who today retreated to wait for reinforcements, tonight had withdrawn to a position 10 miles from the town. There they will await cavalry, infantry and cannon, which rebel leaders said were expected within two days.

The federals today removed dead and wounded from the battlefield. They declined to say how many had been killed in the two days' fighting. The Huerta troops were paid today.

2,600 Troops to Ortega's Aid.

CHIHUAHUA, Mexico, Jan. 3.—By order of General Villa at Juarez, 2,000 rebel troops left here today to reinforce General Ortega's army at Ojinaga. It will require four or five days for the reinforcements to reach Ojinaga. The rebel army is determined to cut off any possible retreat of the federals to any place except the United States.

TIDES AGAIN VENT FURY ON THE COAST

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 3.—Tides more furious than any experienced heretofore this winter did damage in beach towns near Los Angeles today. Pier supports were ripped out and bulkheads and jetties damaged several days ago were washed away. The heavy seas washed up into the streets of Santa Monica, Redondo and Venice.

Scientists of the Mount Wilson observatory and heads of the scientific departments of the educational institutions here were quoted today to the effect that the unusual tides on this coast and on the Atlantic seaboard and European shores were due to a combination of solar and lunar conditions, coupled with either submarine disturbances of a volcanic nature, or terrific and long-continued winds in mid-ocean.

QUASH SERVICE ON KEELER; JUDGE SAYS ACTION ILLEGAL

Denver Man, Defendant in $75,000 Suit For Alienation Must Be Served With Papers Again.

District Judge John W. Shear yesterday quashed the summons served on Francis W. Keeler, a Denver bond broker, in the alienation suit for $75,000 brought against him by Thomas Russum, a Chicago architect. Judge Shear held that the defendant was here under compulsion by a criminal capias and that the service had on Keeler as he was leaving the justice court room here after pleading to a criminal charge in which he and Mrs. Jacquemine Russum were charged with a statutory offense, was illegal under a ruling of the United States supreme court.

As the case now stands, Keeler must again be served if he is forced to defend the suit. Keeler and Mrs. Russum were acquitted in the district court of the criminal charge. Judge Shear directing a verdict in their favor because the state could not show as the cause of the law was "open and notorious." Since that time, Russum has been granted a divorce from his wife at Chicago. It is expected that as soon as service is had on Keeler, he will file a demurrer asking that the suit be dismissed.

SURPLUS FROM SHERIFF'S DEPTS GREATER THAN 1912

Report Shows Earnings Slightly Less But Expense Cut Down By Smaller Salary Roll

GAME KILLED ILLEGALLY CAN'T BE SENT BY POST

Postoffice Department Will Prohibit Practice, According to American Game Protective Association.

The use of the parcel post for the shipment of game killed illegally will be effectively stopped by the postoffice department, according to information received by Colorado Springs sportsmen yesterday from the American Game Protective and Propagation association, New York. The association has worked since the parcel post system became effective to prevent the shipment of game killed in violation of the laws. The matter was taken up with the postal department, and after investigation had been made, Third Assistant Postmaster General Dockery sent the association the following telegram, giving the department's decision:

"The postoffice department has issued an order prohibiting acceptance for mailing of game killed or offered for shipment in violation of the laws of any state, territory or district in which it was killed or tendered for shipment. The order permits acceptance for purposes of mailing of game lawfully killed and offered for shipment, but fresh game may not be mailed beyond the second zone."

In sending word of the decision to sportsmen in this city, President John T. Burnham of the association wrote: "This matter means a great deal for game conservation in this country. Ever since the parcel post has been in operation, it has furnished an ideal means for the shipment of illegal game and added to the worries of the game commissions of the various states and the officials of the biological survey of the federal government."

"For a number of months the American Game Protective association has been trying to solve the problem involved in this matter. It was understood that the postmaster general was friendly to any reasonable suggestion. Dr. T. S. Palmer of the biological survey at Washington and the fish and game commissioners of the various states interested themselves in the problem and various suggestions were made. The action just taken by the postmaster general entirely satisfies game conservationists, and they feel that one of the most dangerous leaks in the game supply of the country has been stopped."

Police Looking for Jack Ewing's Sister

Cripple Creek and Colorado Springs officials are trying to locate a sister of Jack Ewing, 35 years of age, who died last Wednesday at Cripple Creek. Ewing said that he had a sister living in Colorado Springs but he did not tell her name.

Ewing was found in a snowdrift near Victor a week ago and was taken to a hospital in Cripple Creek where he died last Wednesday. He had several letters in his possession which are thought to have been written by his sister, but no name was attached to any of them. Ewing was an old-time prospector and had lived in the Cripple Creek district for 20 years.

Complete Rest Best Prescription for All Ills, Says Dr. Allison

"Rest, complete rest, is one of the best prescriptions a physician can give a patient afflicted with almost any disease and especially from tuberculosis."

Dr. C. C. Allison of Omaha, Neb., one of the most prominent physicians in the country, holds this opinion of the value of rest as a cure. Dr. Allison, accompanied by Mrs. Allison, arrived in Colorado Springs yesterday for a stay of several weeks. They are at the Antlers.

"When a patient is told that he must not go to the theater, attend a reception or fulfill any other social engagement, he usually thinks his physician is too strict," said Dr. Allison. "But such is far from being the case. I believe a patient in the early stages of tuberculosis can be completely cured if he moves to a climate similar to that of the Pikes Peak region, has plenty of good food, fresh air and sunshine and takes a complete rest."

Dr. Allison is one of the few surgeons in the country who has performed an operation for appendicitis without the use of an anesthetic. He believes the system of operating painlessly by nerve compression is capable of wonderful development. Dr. Allison probably will visit the Colorado Fuel and Iron company's Minnequa hospital in Pueblo before returning to his home. The hospital is considered one of the most modern and complete in the world.

WOMAN AND 2-YEAR-OLD BABY HAVE DISAPPEARED

No Trace of Mrs. J. T. Perine Who Left Home Week Ago Following Quarrel.

Having abandoned all hope of finding his wife who left his home last Sunday because he had complained at the way she had taken care of their five small children, J. T. Perine, destitute and almost blind, appealed to the county commissioners for help yesterday. He was promised transportation for himself and children to Las Vegas, N. M., where he said he has friends and relatives who will help him take care of the children.

Taking her 2-year-old baby Mrs. Perine left home last Sunday morning and started to walk to Pueblo along the railroad tracks. When she reached Winfield she was so exhausted that she was unable to proceed further and men around the station made up a purse of $5 for her. She boarded the next train for the south. How far she went is not known and repeated attempts to learn of her whereabouts have been unsuccessful.

Since Mrs. Perine left, the children have been taken care of at the detention home. Perine is almost blind and physicians say that it is but a matter of time until he will be entirely so. He and the four children here will leave tomorrow for Las Vegas.

He was found guilty of contempt and the alimony reduced from $65 a month to $50 a month. Judge W. P. Kinney ordered payments to be made the first and fifteenth of each month.

George A. Haffey a foreman at the Portland mill, who was arrested by the police Friday night for firing his revolver three times in his home, 815 South Baltic street was released yesterday morning on promise to preserve the peace.

Alleging that her husband has been guilty of habitual drunkenness, Mary C. Spear yesterday filed suit for divorce from Frank R. Spear in the county court. Mrs. Spear also asks that her maiden name, Mary C. Lowrey be restored. The couple were married here October 12, 1904.

Alleging cruelty, Filice Rathbun yesterday filed suit in the district court for divorce from G. F. Rathbun. The couple were married December 21, 1908 in this city.

SUPREME COURT HOLDS LONG, SECRET CONFERENCE

PARCEL POST WILL NOW CARRY 50-LB. PACKAGES

Increase in Weight of Parcels Will Mean Boom for All Lines of Shipping

Although the new 50-pound limit for parcel post packages for local, first and second zone delivery, went into effect yesterday, no packages heavier than the old 20-pound limit were mailed at the local postoffice. However in a few days the officials expect some of the business houses to make use of the new ruling.

The measurements of parcels remains the same as of old—not to exceed six feet in length and breadth combined. This will not doubt exclude many articles, 60 pounds of which will be too bulky. Under the new limit it will be possible for commission men to send their fruit by mail, the average box of oranges weighing about 25 pounds and other fruits varying from this about five to ten pounds.

Local officials do not understand why the measurements of parcels were not increased, but believe that it was due to the fact that it is still desired to keep the 50-pounders in the time-up sacks until the postoffice department is able to secure bigger appropriations and more and larger equipment for handling the parcel post.

Under the new ruling it will be possible for grocers and packers to send vegetables and meats through the mail for local and first and second zone delivery. Sides of bacon may now be sent as they average but 30 pounds a piece.

No extra preparations for handling the increased business have been made at the postoffice and none will be made until the volume of business can be estimated.

Postoffice officials have received word that probably before the end of the present year the limit of parcel post packages will be raised to 100 pounds. It is anticipated that on July 1 the limit will go from 50 to 75 pounds and on January 1, 1915, the 100-pound limit for the local and first and second zone rates will go into effect.

to recognize indirectly an organization with which we have to do and have never treated. matter of fact, we have admitted this strike. The men striking for us are entitled to considerable consideration, and it has been rank ingratitude for parties to have promised them action and then asked them to go back to work. There is no doubt that trouble would have been between the men, with all sorts of violence and reprisals, a condition which we could not overlook.

too, anything less than elimination of the Western Federation of Miners would have meant that in a few years, if not sooner, we have had all the work to do in. There was no doubt in the minds of any of us that the first federation members left in the mine would be to the detriment of the mine. It was a matter of time before the mine would be a series of unproductive demands and then start all over again.

In this connection, it was learned that about 300 eviction cases are pending in court. In all of these cases, the property has been seized and appeals taken upon bonds equal to twice the yearly rentals. Up to a few days ago the rentals were of an average of $2 a month, making the bond a small burden on the union.

After these cases had reached this stage, it was said, there came a change in company tactics. Notices were served upon tenants that the rents, after 30 days, would be $25 a month, thus raising the appeal bonds to $500 in each case. Practically all of the eviction cases thus far have arisen in the south end of the strike zone, where the Copper Range Consolidated Mining company has its holdings.

Few Return to Work.
 The north end of the district showed some additional signs of a possible resumption of work. South Kearsarge, previously reported as having a full working force, added 20 men to its rolls.

About 30 men are reported to have applied for work at the Wolverine mine, which has been shut down since the strike started. It is unlikely that any attempt will be made to get one of the Wolverine, Mohawk and Abnakk shafts before the arrival of inclement weather. In the south end of the strike zone, there was a well-authenticated report that the imported guards which have been watching the properties are to be withdrawn soon. It was stated that sufficient force of mounted and foot deputies was at the disposal of the sheriff of Keweenaw county to insure protection to all who might need it.

Company Refuses Demands.
 BOSTON, Jan. 3.—The Calumet and Hecla Mining company will continue to refuse recognition to the Western Federation of Miners or to employ its members, officers of the company said in a statement tonight regarding the strike at their mines.

The copper country, the statement said, "has for 50 years enjoyed industrial peace, and our relations with our men have been mutually satisfactory. We never have discriminated and do not now in the employment between those who do and those who do not belong to labor organizations. We have, however, during the pending strike, refused to employ any man who is not a member of the company."

crises arising from the strike will be taken care of under the state laws. Company officials endorsed this view, but in union circles no great amount of confidence was expressed in the efficacy of these means to protect all interests.

The federal official spent practically the entire afternoon at the regular weekly meeting of mine managers. It was stated that the federation had made every concession possible, and that the right of the men to organize and to affiliate as an organization with any organization they saw fit was still insisted upon. It was intimated that the Western Federation of Miners might even be willing to forego its claims to the territory as a field for its endeavors, provided that the miners were not hampered in affiliating with a body of similar purpose.

Position of Mine Owners.
 This last proposition was a surprise to observers. It had been thought the limit to which the federation would go in that direction was to insist that no discrimination be made against its members.

From discussion in company circles it was assumed that the idea of a local union affiliated with a national body was repugnant because, in the last analysis, such a national body, through the American Federation of Labor, would be in more or less direct alliance with the Western Federation. Representatives of the latter said that a local organization independent of all other union bodies would be a joke. It would be powerless to enforce a refused demand, they said, because no such organization could possibly collect resources sufficient for any future struggle against the treasuries of the companies.

To Employ Strikers?
 There was evidence that the company managers here had about decided to consider the strike at an end, so far as they were concerned. Some few additional union men surrendered their cards to former employers, but not in sufficient numbers to indicate any concerted break in the ranks.

Plans for fresh importations of non-union workers went on, with the next week practically set as the time for their arrival.

Federation sources charged that some of the companies were attempting to force the men back to work by fear of eviction from their homes in the company houses. One instance that was being investigated involved John Maki, a Finn miner, who was arrested at Winona, charged with stealing firewood, and placed in jail here. Maki's friends said that the alleged larceny consisted in his having cut wood with which to build a fire for his wife and children after they had been thrown out of their home and left with their effects piled upon a snow-covered road.

Four Killed When Building Collapses.
 SOUTH BEND, Ind., Jan. 3.—Three men and one woman were killed when a recently remodeled three-story building, the lower floor of which was vacant, collapsed here today. One of the victims was a Chinaman, the woman was a negress.

The Chinaman and negress were employed in a restaurant, which occupied the second floor of the building. The building collapsed while the streets were crowded, and a number of persons had narrow escapes from injury.

One man was caught by the falling timbers and pinned to the ground, but was released in a short time. He was not seriously injured.

refuse to give recognition to the Western Federation of Miners or to employ its members for reasons peculiar to that organization."

The statement severely arraigned the policy of the federation, adding: "The great majority of the employees have voluntarily and spontaneously petitioned us never to recognize this organization or employ its members."

Deplore Christmas Tragedy.
 The statement also said: "The company, with all the officers and employees of the mines, join in deploring the unhappy accident which destroyed the Christmas happiness of so many of our fellow citizens, and we have been anxious and ready to give every assistance to our stricken fellows that lies within our power."

"The company will continue to do everything in its power to contribute to the safety, comfort and happiness of its employees. On December 1, 1913, an eight-hour day for underground employees and a nine-hour day for surface men was put into effect. The general manager sets aside a fixed day every week for hearing complaints and grievances among the men, individually or through committees. These improvements were not suggested or hastened by present conditions, but are a part of a fixed program of progressive improvement which always has been, and always will continue to mark the policy of the company."

"The company desires and will endeavor to make hours and wages equal or superior to those obtaining in any copper mines at home or abroad."

The officers who issued the statement are: Q. A. Shaw, president; R. L. Agassiz, vice president, and James MacNaughton, general manager.

No Surprise at Coalition.
 LANSING, Mich., Jan. 3.—The statement issued tonight by officers of the Calumet and Hecla Mining company in Boston, that the company will continue to ignore the Western Federation of Miners, was expected by state officials, who have figured in attempts to compromise the labor troubles in the Calumet copper mine strike region.

Recently state officers were urged by prominent union officials to make another attempt to bring together the warring parties. It is understood Governor Ferris informed the labor representatives that he was willing to do all he could to end the strike, but he deemed it useless to submit to the mining operators any proposition from the miners which included the recognition of the federation. The union men, it is said, insisted the federation be recognized.

In a recent statement Governor Ferris said he could settle the strike in 24 hours if the question of recognition of the federation were settled by those interested in the dispute.

WILL BANKNOTES BE EASIER TO GET NOW?

No, but They Will Perform Greater Service to the Country at Large

By SIDNEY ESPEY.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—The regional reserve bank notes, the printed evidence of the establishment of a new order of banking, may not be any easier to get hold of than any other form of money but when once obtained the holder will possess paper which has gone through a process something like this:

When a merchant, a grain dealer or farmer or other business man sells goods and does not receive money he accepts either the promissory note of the man to whom the merchandise is sold or carries the obligation on open account. If he is a commission merchant or jobber he may draw drafts against the shipment. These forms of paper are valuable because they may be discounted, banks paying out money or giving the depositor credit to the amount of the paper discounted, less interest. This system of obtaining money from banks on paper based on commercial transactions moves along smoothly in times of prosperity.

Then when money becomes "tight," when interest rates advance and men everywhere lack confidence in the future, tending to keep a tight hold on money, this system of credits comes to a sudden stop. The usual avenues of money transactions are blocked and there is a congestion of traffic. The result is business depression or, less frequently, actual panic.

Bank Takes Commercial Paper.
 The answer to this trouble, it is declared, is the regional bank note. Under the new system the promissory note draft or other form of obligation will be presented at the bank by the owner of the paper. Thereupon the bank discounts it. But instead of being compelled to bear the strain of furnishing money or credit the strain is shifted along to the regional reserve bank. The bank to which the paper was presented sends it to the regional reserve bank. The paper now bears the indorsement of the ownership and of the bank to which it was first presented. The regional bank rediscovers the paper segregates 40 per cent of the face value of the paper in gold, to be held as a reserve against the notes to be issued, and then sends back to the small bank an amount of regional reserve notes equal to the amount of the commercial paper which has been discounted. The man who held the note receives the regional reserve bank notes.

This is theoretically the case, as a matter of fact he will be paid for his note in any form of money the bank has on hand when the paper is presented for discount and the bank will reimburse itself with the regional reserve notes which, for ordinary purposes, will be used interchangeably in commerce with all other forms of paper currency.

In the course of 90 days, in some cases six months the promissory note on which all this transaction is based comes due. It must be paid. It must be paid in money. Consequently the bank holding the paper draws from the business man an amount of money equal to the amount which it loaned him on his discounted paper.

Avoids Inflation of Credits.
 In this way the amount of money in circulation is reduced as each note becomes due and the danger of constantly adding to the amount of currency in circulation—the danger of "inflation"—is avoided. This in a simple way is the road which the regional bank note will travel. There are a number of variations to be played on this theme but the mass of notes will flow from the reserve banks and back to them in the manner outlined.

The 40 per cent of gold which the reserve bank must put up to guarantee the redemption of the regional reserve note is to be obtained from the

"Duel Bureau" in Berlin Furnishes the Combatants

BERLIN, Jan. 3.—Dueling has been deplored of most of its romance today by the discovery of a "duel bureau" which furnishes combatants for the field of honor to all persons who can afford the price, said to be low.

Herr Erbsberger, the Roman Catholic leader, exposed the duel bureau while making an appeal before the Reichstag to have the war minister prohibit dueling in the army. After stating that one word from the kaiser would abolish the duel, Herr Erbsberger continued:

"Here in Berlin there is an institution which supplies so-called 'gentlemen' to bring about divorce suits, and so compel the injured husband to challenge them."

Inquiries showed the truth of Herr Erbsberger's statement. The institution enjoys a large patronage, particularly from officers, who employ the man of honor when it happens to be inconvenient for them to fight in person. The exposures are being used by the Socialists in efforts to dim the glamor of the army service.

capital of the reserve banks and the reserve deposits which member banks will be required by law to make. It is on reserve deposits that the reserve banks must chiefly depend however if all national banks enter the system the reserves will exceed $600,000,000. The reserve bank itself must hold 35 per cent of this amount, so that the free reserves will be approximately $400,000,000. This whole sum if employed for no other purpose, would provide reserves for one billion dollars of regional reserve notes.

Before the notes can be issued, however, the business men of the country must have felt the need of more money. The individual banks must have decided that they cannot profitably meet the demands from their own resources and the paper must meet the approval of both the individual bank and the federal reserve bank.

England Laughs at Rescue of a Cow.
 LONDON, Jan. 3.—The rescue of a cow is making England laugh. A farmer, who had refused to pay arrears under the insurance act had one of his cows seized by the sheriff and the beast was led into the square of the market town of Turriff, Aberdeen-shire, to be sold.

The cow, however, was rushed out of the square by a crowd of about 2,000 farmers and others who jeered and shouted.

No local auctioneer would conduct the sale and one had been obtained from the neighboring county of Banff. On him the excited crowd turned their attention, and he was compelled to seek shelter in an outhouse. There the police guarded the doors and were attacked with cabbage-totten eggs and other missiles.

Under the reinforced police guard, the auctioneer followed by the crowd, was escorted to the premises of the local sheriff's office where he escaped to the back door.

Meanwhile the cow had run out of the town, the rope attached to its bridle having been cut.

CHARLES W. OWENS, INDIANAPOLIS DENTIST, TALKS ON ADVERTISING

The medical science has been practiced for hundreds and perhaps thousands of years. The five-year-old child is ready to run for the doctor at the drop of the hat. We have it from the cradle to the grave. The doctor who carries on a general practice needs no publicity. Not a bit more than the government needs to advertise postage stamps.

The fatal mistake of the dental profession has been to mimic the medical ethics; it has kept the public in ignorance and the dentist in poverty.

As to his ability to abuse the man who believes in paying for his publicity, he never misses an opportunity to tell everybody he meets what an awful taker the advertiser is, what him gold he uses and a hundred other things too terrible to mention; and, as a rule, this same person goes straight to the advertiser and has his work done and tells him all about it.

The real facts are, the advertising offices today are doing a straightforward, conscientious business, realizing that lasting reward comes from good only. The days of fakery in all lines of business are past. What the people want is good, prompt service at a moderate cost. The talk of bad manners, a shadow over the entire profession and doubt in the mind which is on the right road to dental education.

Some boys spend three years in dental college, comes out no doubt with a good foundation to make a living and some for old age, but the ethical proposition kills him dead. In college he naturally meets and mixes with the nature professor who has a few millionaires, manufacturers and princely merchants and their families on his books and is living what to him is an ideal life; his publicity comes easy; he is dealing with the people who have the spare time and money to look up the good things in life. But what a difference when he gets back to his native stamping ground; he finds farmers, laborers, miners, mechanics and clerks outnumbering the princely merchants about 40 to one, and, what do they know about dentistry? Absolutely nothing; they haven't time and money to be hunting good things. The few princely merchants in the community go over to the city to Dr. Highbrow for their dental work. So this young man waits for patients and when three years roll around he is not as much of a dentist as he was the day he received his diploma.

I am an advertising dentist because I feel in this way I can do the most good.

SHIPS CAN PASS THROUGH

THE CANAL IN 70 DAYS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—The Panama canal will be in condition to pass vessels all the way across the isthmus within the next 70 days. It was learned today, unless some unexpected obstacle is encountered. This is the judgment of a high canal official.

The only remaining obstacles to prevent the passage of vessels at this moment are at the Cucaracha slide which blocks the cut at Culabra, and the few additional slides of relatively minor importance in the same locality.

ABE MARTIN ON NEW YEARS

In the January American magazine "Abe Martin" writes a piece about New Year resolutions. Following is an extract:

"Sometimes when a fellow who kin drink or leave it alone gets it looking back over the year, just cussin' all sums up all the things he's done or undone, all the energy an' money he's wasted an' all the things he's misad or neglected in that regretted time, the past looms up like a piece of tar soap. Then he quietly resolves 'I bid good-bye to the social cup on New Years day, little dreamin' of the colossal struggle jest around the corner."

"The fellow who has long been used to fortifyin' himself with a stimulant on ever occasion has putty tough sleddin' for a while after he swears off. There's the ordeal of buyin' a new hat or attendin' a banquet. The fellow who kin drink or leave it alone allus smells like a Deer Creek distillery after he buys a new hat or goes to the grocery bill. How his waistcoat pockets bulge with francs, each one representin' a 15-cent drink that he's muffed while in the hands of friends, an' how his little children nukes the peppermint drops that used to fall from his overcoat as he flung it carelessly across the plunger."

"Lafe Bud neds that sittin' on an off the water wagon is the only exercise some fellows ever git."

This Is the Time of the Year when the greatest excuse exists for the merchant to give the best bargains. It's the only season that the bargains can be directed to the home people exclusively. This seems to be the only occasion when the appeal goes to our own people, so to speak. At other times there are more or less of a floating population not so much entitled to best consideration.
We believe the sale at this time should be the greatest in the year. As an appreciation to those that at all times are with us and of necessity must depend upon us for the same kind of real bargains as are offered in other communities.
With this in view we are making this sale of an order to be much more desired by home people.

LONG FUR CUFFS A NOVEL SUBSTITUTE FOR A MUFF

Moire and Velvet an Approved Combination in Winter Dress—Minaret Hat and Grass Algrette

NEW YORK, Jan. 3. The Christmas shopping was at its height, and as the hour between 4 and 5 arrived the shoppers, tired and exhausted from long hours spent in rushing from store to store, drifted into the different tea rooms for refreshments before going home to dress for dinner, 1, of course.

There are also many little finishing touches that may be given to a simple dress to give it an air of distinction. I noticed the jacket of a black broadcloth suit which had the collar and cuffs edged with the finest cord of dull gold. Pockets which have been denied to women for years are appearing again in all sorts of unexpected places, some useful and others entirely ornamental.

It is also appearing especially on hats, which, by the way, are extremely soft and pliable, not built on the stiff followed along after them, keeping my eyes open for something new in dress, something out of the ordinary, and finally found myself in an up-town tea room, where, only the ultra fashionables were to be seen.

As I nibbled my crackers and sipped my orange pekoe I watched the gay throng. One young woman came bustling in, wearing a yellowish-brown coat with a collar of yellow fox and trimmed at the bottom of the skirt with a band of the same fur. The most striking feature of this coat was the sleeves. They were of three-quarter length, and had fur cuffs almost as long as the sleeves themselves, so that when the hands were joined the wearer appeared to carry a long and narrow muff. When the coat was removed I saw that she wore an afternoon dress of saffron duvetine corresponding to the color of the coat.

The skirt was one of those pretty draped affairs not so very different from many others in the room, but the waist was formed from a long scarf of the same material about 10 inches wide. It was draped over a full lace blouse straight across the bust under the arms and over the shoulders, meeting in the front, where it was caught, securely, about four inches from the tasseled ends which fell free. The sleeves were three-quarter length. This seemed to be the general style of dress adopted by most of the women, although long sleeves were also in evidence.

Two strikingly pretty young women seated themselves at a nearby table. They were charmingly gowned and in such perfect taste that their frocks seemed real works of art. The first wore moire and velvet like the dress pictured in Figure 1. The skirt and front of waist were of pale green velvet while the body of the waist and tunic were of dark blue moire, a color combination introduced to us by the Russian artist Leon Bakst. The tunic dipped in the front and sloped up at the sides; it was overlapped by the wide front panel of the skirt. The vest of the waist was of the velvet with a row of covered buttons. The broad collar which folded back from the vest and over the shoulders was of silk to match the velvet. On her head she wore a cunning little round hat, having fur around the brim and a bunch of wired ostrich tips at the side.

Her companion illustrated in Fig. 2 wore as she entered, a Minaret coat of moleskin with bands of white fox fur at the neck, sleeves and bottom of the skirt, while around the waist was a kirkie of black velvet. Perched coquettishly on her blonde curls was the smartest little original turban which the French call a "Minaret." In place of the forbidden algrette was a similar ornament fashioned from a certain kind of grass which grows upon the plains of Russia and in Japan. It closely resembles the algrette, and has the same place in this country, at least as it is of reasonable price and cannot be objected to upon the grounds of inhumanity to our feathered friends.

Since this law excluding ostrich feathers was enacted it is surprising how quickly many in the forms of

A CHILD DOESN'T LAUGH AND PLAY

If little stomach is sour, liver torpid and bowels clogged

Give California Syrup of Figs at once, a teaspoonful today often saves a sick child tomorrow.

If your little one is out-of-sorts, half-sick, can't rest, eat and act naturally, look, Mother, see if tongue is coated. This is a sure sign that its little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with waste. When cross, irritable, restless, stomach sour, breath bad or has stomach-ache, diarrhea, sore throat, full of cold, gives a restless night of California Syrup of Figs, and in a few hours all the congested poison, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well pleased child again.

Mother can rest easy after giving this harmless "fruit laxative," because it never fails to cleanse the little one's liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach, and they dearly love its pleasant taste. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of California Syrup of Figs, then see that it is made by the California Fig Syrup Company. Don't be fooled!

me she was making up a large number of bustles, as she had already had so many requests for them. But it hardly seems possible, after a year or so of such semiconcorted fashion as has been the vogue for the last year or so, that women will ever again return to bustles and tight corsets. Surely, the higher education of women and the broad feminist movement should tend to keep the clothes a little more natural.

With many of these attractive gowns were worn strings of amber, jade or amethyst beads, and even colored beads and seeds; anything, in fact, if it only strikes the current note in the color harmony of the costume. Some of these necklaces are made of beads of graduated sizes, with a square or heart-shaped pendant hanging in the center. Again a large single pearl, ruby, emerald or piece of coral is hung from the neck by a silken cord. Could anything be more simple and attractive?

The handbags are much more graceful in shape than they have been, the accepted style being long and oval, with a single wrist strap fastened at the smaller end. Some are made of material similar to the gown worn, some are of the silk, and one very elegant one I saw was made from strips of morocco and moire. While harmony in colors and materials is very popular, still the very opposite effect is seen—for instance, with a taupe suit a brilliant red-and-white beaded handbag was carried.

Getting a Franchise Back

TORONTO IS FINDING SUCH A FEAT AN EXPENSIVE THING

From the Detroit News.
Hear a tale of Toronto's troubles. Twenty-one years ago Toronto opened her hand and gave a street railway company $20,000,000. That is, the city gave the company a franchise for 30 years. How does anyone know that franchise was worth $20,000,000? The street railway company itself says so.
That franchise was worded after a fashion which was tried in Detroit when Mr. Hutchins and a mayor of this city lent their names to an "ordinance." The wording was that the company should not be compelled to give service beyond the then limits—the limits as of the year 1891.
Considered it a Good Bargain.
Well, Toronto thought it had made a good bargain. And as matters stood at that time, it did make a good bargain, a much better one than Detroit ever made. For Toronto bargained for a certain percentage of the street railway profits, which every year since then has increased, making a handsome dividend for the city every year. The News has referred to this sharing of profits as an example of what street railway companies can do when the people compel them to do it.
But that does not satisfy Toronto now. The city has troubled in growth. It has been caught on the same advancing wave that raised Detroit from a fourth-rate city to her present commanding position. Toronto grew, but the street railway facilities did not keep step. The city marched, the street railway marked time.
The result is that though Toronto has a franchise bargain, it has rotten service. The company will not improve it, and the city cannot get along with it as it is.
And so Toronto has come at last to the question of municipal ownership. But when Toronto approached the company with a view to buying its property, the first thing it found was that the company was putting a pretty long price on it. This, of course, was to be expected. It is one of street railway companies' little ways. But even the long price might not have been a hindrance to the deal, if the question of franchise hadn't come up.
"That price is for the property alone," said the company. "Of course, we cannot include the franchise in that."
To Buy Back a Gift.
"The franchise!" exclaimed Toronto. "Why, we gave you that franchise—gave it to you freely. It didn't cost you a cent—What! Buy back the franchise we gave you?"
"It is ours, we own it. If you want it you must pay for it," insisted the company.
"Pay for it?" asked the city. "How do you fix its value?"
"Well, this paper you gave us is worth $1,000,000 a year in profits to us. If you want it, you will have to pay $1,000,000 for every year the franchise has yet to run."
As the franchise has something like 3 years years of life, Toronto is asked to pay something like $3,000,000 for its own rights in its own streets—rights which she freely accorded the company in the franchise gift.
So you see how a piece of paper which a city considers as lightly as to give away, becomes over so valuable the moment it has changed hands. Toronto, according to the street railway company's present contention, a contention backed by experts, actually gave the company $3,000,000 the day the franchise was signed.
In view of this, how foolish it is to let any city to give away such vast wealth and to corporations who a little appreciate it.
Can't Get New Service.
But the Toronto situation has another significance. In its profit sharing feature, the Toronto franchise became the envy of other cities. All were too short-sighted to demand a share in the monopoly a franchise creates. If a franchise, for the time in which it was granted, was an ideal one. But see what has happened, even under an ideal franchise. Toronto, with all its large annual income from the company, cannot get service. The big and growing city cannot be served properly. Its citizens are feeling the pinch so acutely that, profits or no profits they feel they must have street cars and service. This happens under a pretty fair franchise arrangement.
And what does it mean? It means simply that there are no good franchises. That the street railway companies are more interested in dividends than service, that private corporations are constitutionally unable to get the public point of view and the sense of public need, and that municipal ownership is, after every other experiment clearly seen to be the one solution. When the public serves itself, it is properly served. When the public charges itself, it is fairly charged. When the city grows, the city's railroad grows with it. And under municipal ownership there can be no such folly as the city handing a little knot of business men the free gift of $30,000,000, or larger sums.

son that this finished
the following letter to Bernard Shaw.
In it apparently more is meant than strikes the ear, but it is nevertheless amusing enough to reprint.

"My dear Shaw"—begins the letter—
"I have a young friend—a very young friend—who has your recent enlargement of the bounds of morality. He has written a play which seems to me likely to advance your views—if we can only get it produced. Its dramatic personae are five Hottentots, 11 monkeys and 13 gosses. They are all quite naked and delightfully unashamed.
There is no coherent story, no vestige breach of faith on the part of the New York producer was responsible for the withdrawal from the management of the play in question is not definitely known, but the fact remains that the premiere in Chicago was a dismal failure. And that Mr. Brady sold out his interest for $25,000 to the American Play company, which company is said to have sold 25 per cent of their interests to A. H. Woods and 25 per cent to Lee Shubert.

When Mr. Woods went to Chicago to see what he had purchased, he was so impressed with "Within the Law" in view of its failure to attract the patronage of the Windy city, that he agreed to have it open his new Eltinge theater in New York, to which house it was brought 70 weeks ago, achieving such a success that nine companies were later organized for this country, while one is presenting the piece in London, one in Vienna, one in Australia, one in Germany and one in France.

Mr. Broadway has remained a factor in this triumph. He had a contract giving him an interest in the piece for his collaboration, and when asked to sell out, he declined.

Unless the unexpected happens—and during the present season this is far from being impossible—"Robin Hood"
the comic opera whose some scenes never to die, will be presented at the opera house about the middle of next month by the De Koven Opera company. The company is headed by Beattie Abbott, dramatic soprano, assisted by Masha Ferenko of the Imperial opera, St. Petersburg; George Prothingham of the original Bostons-ians; Sara Muxon, Helena Morrill, Phil
Branson, Tillie Salinger, Jerome Daley, James Stevens, Sid Asham and others.

Emma Trentini, the light opera prima donna of whom much has been heard in the Rockies as well as the city, probably will be seen at the Opera house—soon in "The Firefly." In this comedy opera the charming singer won her success as the "Suzette" musician.
Otto Hauch, who is the "Suzette" for the book of "The Firefly," Rudolph Friml wrote the music, and the production is under the direction of Arthur Ham-melsheim.

'Adele' Not Unlike Show of Fashions

The hardest work of getting up a new musical show has nothing to do with the author, composer or stage director. They have their troubles, of course, but they are nothing to those of the producer who has to scheme and study costume plates and coloring, for you know the eye demands as much entertainment as the ear.

To Joseph P. Bickerton, Jr., producer of "Adele," one of the greatest musical triumphs since "The Merry Widow," credit must be given for introducing the new creations in Paris gowns and lingerie, which have since become the vogue of all up-to-date composers. Mr. Bickerton sent an agent abroad for the purpose of securing new designs and color. On his return, with the aid of a designer in New York, he reconstructed the models to suit him, with the result mentioned. To those who have not yet seen "Adele," an idea of the devotion and the material of the gowns worn by the ladies may be interesting.

"Steady myself to retain my mental and moral balance, I am always cordially yours,"

"HENRY ARTHUR JONES."

WHAT THE PRESS AGENT'S SAY

"WITHIN THE LAW."
Margaret Illington's appearance at the Opera house tomorrow and Tuesday in the stellar role of Bayard Vellier's sensational successful melodrama "Within the Law," draws attention to the fabulous fortune that is the harvest of the playwright lucky enough to "put across" a real hit and also to the almost incredible hazards that enter into the production of a play.

As is now pretty well known "Within the Law," is one of the most phrenomenal successes in the history of the American theater. In this country alone 10 companies—the largest number of organizations every sent forth simultaneously in the same play—are making known the Vellier play in as many different sections and with huge profits. In London "Within the Law" has already passed the seventh month of a run that promises to establish a new record for American dramatic offerings in the British metropolis. Two other companies are touring the English provinces. In far-away Australia the vogue of this absorbing play is almost as great as in America. Melbourne, where it was first presented in the Antipodes, and Sydney have been applauding the vicissitudes of its persecuted Anti-girl heroine for months past. "Within the Law" is also being played in Berlin and Vienna and in Paris it will be made known next month. In New York this play is now well into a second year of a consecutive run that has amazed even the calloused Broadwayites. It will probably remain for a full season longer.

Bright lines, tuneful music charmingly sung, pretty girls and gorgeous dresses provide a combination that goes a long way to make "Adele" the musical comedy which comes to the Opera house January 10, an entertainment worth while. Its ad ent in this city is backed by the endorsements of every critic in New York.

"Adele" is in three acts and each act seems to unfold its plot as in handsome settings. The book is by Paul Herve and the music by Jean Briquet who gave to the French public that well known success "Vauville" was translated and produced for the American stage by Adolph Phillips and Edward A. Paulson.

The cast includes Carolyn Thomson, who plays the title role, Annie Flack, who for three years has been prima donna of the New York Broadway John Park, leading baritone for the last 10 years with the highest musical organizations in this country, George O'Donnell, a grand opera bass with European and American reputation, Alfred Kapeler, who scored a remarkable success in the "Waltz Dream"
and the "Arcadians," Ralph Nairn,
leading comedian with the Gaiety theater in London musical companies and a score of others, equally prominent.

Rud Fisher's cartoon creations, "Mutt and Jeff" will be seen at the Opera house soon in a new musical production, "Mutt and Jeff at Panama."

INSPIRATION SOUGHT IN NOVEL WAYS

2 Playwrights Find Theirs
While in Turkish Baths
or Barber Chairs

French Dramatists Get
Ideas During Midnight
Drives in Paris

Authors, particularly dramatists, seek inspirations in odd ways. The famous French collaborators De Cal-lavet and De Fiers, when they are at a loss for ideas, take an open car, go and go for a two or three hour drive after midnight in Paris. Henry Arthur Jones, when his climaxes do not develop in just the manner he thinks they should, takes an express train and gets a flux of ideas as the "venery" flies past him at a 10 or 15-mile clip.

Quite the most amusing manner of seeking inspiration is that of Charles Goddard and Paul Dickey, authors of "The Misleading Lady." It was still a week before the premiere of the piece. Night rehearsals were being held in order to rush through the production. The stage was a climax for the second act. The two authors found it necessary in the development of the plot to have the tireless young woman, who had been carried off by the gentlemanly cavalier from Patagonia, turn the tables on her captor.
One after another four scenes were tried, yet none of these had the necessary dramatic effect.

"If we can get out of here and get into a Turkish bath," said Charles Goddard, "we may get the right idea."

"You're right," exclaimed Dickey.
William Morris, Jr., joined him incredulously and said: "If you really think it will do any good, the bath-house is off until tomorrow, I taking."

Dickey then explained the odd inspiration which had struck him. He had been in a Turkish bath, and he had seen a man, a real one, a real novel idea for both "The Misleading Lady" and for "The Ghost of the First Act."

"Goddard always gets his ideas when he is taking a bath and I when my head is hanging over the end of a barber's chair. We have been stuck pretty badly for ideas," he explained.
"But after two or three baths and two or three shaves, as the case may be, we always succeed in getting just the right twist to the situation that we have in hand."

The two playwrights then went to a well-known Turkish bath, and had gone through the steam room, scald-ing bath, the sweating room and had reached the scurvy. As Dickey related the other evening. "For some reason the idea did not come, probably because we were thinking on hard that we must get an idea in order to convince Mr. Morris that we had not taken this step as a way to escape an extra rehearsal."

"As we were lying on the low tables and our skin was commencing to glow under the vigorous manipulation, a telephone bell rang. Goddard yelled:
"We've got it!"

"We'll have Helen Steele hit Craig-en over the head with a telephone and escape."

"Rully!" I shouted.

"We jumped up, went to our dressing rooms, dressed, rushed back to the hotel to write the climax. This climax is the finish of the second act."

"And thank heaven, nobody can say that we took it from Sardou. There weren't any telephones in his day."

Louis Persinger of this city, one of the greatest violinists of Colorado production, is competing in Europe this winter, winning tremendous successes.
The violinist made a coast to coast concert tour in America last year. He was the favorite pupil of Jacques Thibaud, French violinist. Persinger was soloist of the great Bleuth of chesters, Berlin, and Thibaud, went from Paris to Berlin to conduct the orchestra for his favorite student.

The American Academy of Arts and Letters has bestowed its gold medal upon Augustus Thomas as the native playwright of greatest achievement in recent years. The medal is awarded in any specific branch of music, literature or the arts, once in every 10 years. This is the fifth time it has been given.

Brander Matthews, professor of dramatic literature in Columbia university, has been selected resident of the academy.

College dramatists are at last awakening to the immense tragic inspiration to be found in almost any book of the Bible, and it is interesting to note that the University of Wisconsin Dramatic society has, as an acting version of "Job," considered by many scholars one of the greatest poems ever written. M. M. Kallen, instructor in philosophy at that seat of learning, gives it as his opinion that the work was presented in dramatic form by the ancient Hebrews and in so far as possible it will be staged in this fashion.
The story of the man of the story has immense significance, and it would be pleasing to hear that our friends the Liebers, who are devoted to such elaborate productions, are to make a work of this sort. The successor is "Joseph and His Brethren."

Tossing Immigrant Kids Into the Melting Pot

How Neighborhood Associations Are Transforming Youngsters of Foreign Parentage Into Lively, Intelligent American Kids.

ly clubs meet. It is large enough for small dances and debating clubs. It is large enough for an office, a night school, a dining hall and a baby clinic. Here the women of the neighborhood of ten different nationalities come and receive treatment and have their babies cared for.

The house is doing a wonderful work with its small equipment. Under the direction of Mrs. Catherine Fertig the clubs and different ac-

If the city is in league with the landlord and refuses to enforce the law, the Neighborhood Association is strong enough to compel action. The men of the association and the women, too, learn their rights and demand respect just as John Adams read the Bill of Rights to the English in Massachusetts Colony a century and a half ago.

NEW AMERICANS DEMAND RIGHTS. They learn their rights if the loan

CHARLES NAGEL, former Secretary of Commerce and Labor, who has aided in Neighborhood Association work, and two snapshots at Neighborhood House. Above, weighing the baby. Below, mothers bringing their children to the clinic.

The immigrant who comes to the United States today, to be thrown in the melting pot of American citizenship, in order that he may come out an unalloyed nephew of Uncle Sam, is cast into a different melting pot from that in which immigrants of a generation ago found themselves.

Formerly, when statesmen in the making were learning to follow in the footsteps of George Washington and Abraham Lincoln, the vast majority of Americans lived in the small communities, where each man knew his neighbor. Many met each other on a common footing and each took an interest in the other's affairs.

Daniel Webster made his first debate in the little New England school house, where, with other boys of his age, he discussed the constitution and the rights of the States. Abraham Lincoln joined in the social activities of his community in Illinois, where he went to the country school house in the weekly spelling matches. When Mr. Lincoln learned the first principles of law arguing for the rights of a fellow schoolmate.

Today the immigrant coming to America is cast into the city. He falls to get the real American idea and when he comes out of the cauldron it is found he has absorbed much of the slag of his surroundings. It isn't his fault. It is the fault of the system.

To counteract that tendency social workers of the cities are trying to bring back the community life of our forefathers. Combining the bigness of the city, which tends to make man forget he has neighbors, the social service workers are bringing the young men and women to central meeting places. The old men and women are brought together, too. The school house brings the children together, but the shop and office steal the small ones from the schools as early in their teens as the laws of the State will allow.

They work the children as many hours a day as they can and prevent their full development. Here is where the social service people take a hand. In the crowded districts, where the immigrants come and increase the crowds, they work the hardest.

SCHOOLS APPEAL TO FOR SUPPORT.

Handicapped by lack of money, they have appealed to the churches and have received good support, but the churches will not appeal to all, because of peculiar sectarian beliefs, so the school boards have been petitioned. The social service workers want to get into the school house, as Webster, Lincoln, Jackson, Garfield and McKinley entered them. They want to bring the community together and teach the ways of Uncle Sam. The immigrant is eager to learn.

The immigrant is not the only one the workers are after. They are after the native born American in the crowded districts, whose young are growing up under adverse surroundings. Youth are a law unto themselves. If a crowd find the right kind it will find the wrong kind. In the public school house the right kind is sure to be found. The community will not stand for wrong in the school house and that alone reason the neighborhood making as solutions are demanding entrance. The other is the school house is already equipped. In the large cities every school house is provided with gymnasium equipment. The chess rooms are there and the equipment for night school teaching.

In New York the use of the school house has been in progress for two years with remarkable success. The children of American and European parents have flocked to the building and are making a new Americanism where interest in the other fellow is one of the dominant traits.

Self interest is fostered by the city life is strictly non-American. When King George III blocked the port of Boston little neighboring towns offered their stricken neighbor the use of their wharves. The big town does not do that. If the port of New York should be blocked today, Chicago and Philadelphia would grab as much of her trade as they could. The American spirit which has made this nation a leader of the world is the spirit of the desert man, who shares his last drink of water to a fellow man on the Great American Desert.

That spirit is not aroused where the multitude pushes its way along each day and no part of it knows the business of another part. You get the unselfish American spirit only when one man knows the other, the neighborhood makers say. In the small city just big enough to have street cars, every man will get up and offer his seat to a woman standing. In the big city every man grabs his seat and some race to see if they cannot beat the slower going woman in a hobble skirt to it.

In New York the neighborhood organization of Public School No. 53 started with a dining club. There was a large third court between the wings of the school house and that was a good place for dining. In order to defray expenses, such as music, light and janitor service, membership tickets were issued and a fee of 5 cents a week was charged. Those who did not demean themselves properly at the dances were expelled from the club by vote of the organization.

SELF GOVERNMENT ORGANIZATION FORMED.

At first ninety persons came. The number grew to 500. That was only the beginning. It formed a self government organization and got the people of the neighborhood into the habit of coming to the school house for their recreation. Many of these were of foreign birth, but all were learning to be Americans. Many were the descendants of the old Dutchmen who bought Manhattan Island from the Indians.

Following the formation of the dance club, monthly concerts were provided. Then a child welfare exhibit was held and the neighbors began to take an interest in each other's children. Mrs. Pat Mahanah met Mrs. Pete Hilsch, who lived on the floor above, and became good friends.

"We had been neighbors for three years, but never knew each other except to nod in passing," said Mrs. Hilsch.

Then an orchestra was organized and from that grew a musical society. Henry Lefkowitz, an American with what formerly was an un-American name, took charge of the society. He soon had 100 members. Last summer when the flood raged along the Ohio River that club in the slums raised $50 for the flood sufferers by giving concerts. They played the great masters. Music from Beethoven, Tchaikovsky, Wagner, Handel, Massenet, Wroniawski, and Suppe were in the repertoire.

A similar use of the school house is sought in other cities. In St. Louis an attempt has been made for several years to break down the bars of the schoolhouse and turn it over to the public when it is not being used for the purpose of instructing the youth in books. So far their efforts have been only partially successful. The School Board and others in charge of the buildings have given consent for the use of the building only part of the time and then under restrictions.

TRYING TO BREAK INTO SCHOOLS. Neighborhood House, the headquarters of the neighborhood association, is built just across the street from one of the big new schoolhouses a mute appeal to the directors of education to let the organization completely in.

Neighborhood House is a four-room flat. There many of the weekly activities of the house do $5,000 worth of business a year in addition to the voluntary services of the club leaders and physicians. Valued at about $25,000 a year if it had to be paid for.

J. Lionberger Davis, Roger Baldwin, Louis Haslam, Horace Swope, Gustavus Tuckerman, Miss Charlotte Hamblin, Mrs. John L. Day, Mrs. Oscar Johnson, Mrs. Sarah Young, Mrs. Anna Wallace, Mrs. Nellie Richards, Mrs. Mary Bulkeley and other leading civic improvement workers are members of the association and helping direct the work.

One of the organizations of the Neighborhood House is the supper club to which men and women come for a 10-cent supper. It meets once a week. They have a social chat and develop acquaintance. Usually there is a special speaker at the club supper giving the occasion the importance of a meeting of business men. Questions of great importance are discussed at the 10-cent supper, however. There the people hear about things that concern their life and health. The tenement law sometimes is taken up and explained. After a talk the diners go out and look for law violations. If they live in a house where the landlord is not living up to the requirements of the law the neighborhood folk know it and can give the tip to the law enforcing machinery of the city.

sharks oppress them and learn what they must do to be good Americans. The foreign element is particularly helped. Ailing children are brought to Neighborhood House by their mothers and given treatment by the corps of physicians who serve without pay. These children would grow up on the streets and learn the ethics of the gang if it were not for the influence of such institutions as Neighborhood House. When the children come under the influence of that institution they are tossed into the Melting Pot so they can come out pure Americans.

But one enough can not be given. There are plenty of volunteer workers. Those of the congested districts are willing to help and work without pay.

Neighborhood House was formed by the amalgamation of two other organizations in the neighborhood. One of the early workers in one of these organizations was Charles Nagel, Secretary of Commerce and Labor under the administration of President Taft. The movement had had men of ability at the helm since its inception.

As the World Moves. "You will admit that we are in a high state of civilization?" "Well," replied the man who gloomily jocosely, "some of it is civilization, and some of it is trivialization."

What is an inexperienced layman who knows nothing about carbohydrates and protein diets, to do? If's all he can do to earn enough to keep himself in bacon and potatoes, let alone study all the food magazines and writings of the physical culture experts who swarm the land.

All this makes the ultimate consumer sigh and wish the merchants of the cities would have a heart and sell pecans instead of beefsteak. Added to the other food faddists are those who declare starvation is the best cure for all diseases.

These declarations are spread broadcast. Some men are too busy to read and learn, but there are plenty left to follow the teachings of the discoverers.

The THINGS WE SEE WHILE ASLEEP

Psychologists Declare
Dreams Are Deliriums
Made up of Kaleidoscopic
Images of 'Things' That Have Happened or Words
That Have Been Heard.

What makes us dream? For ages men have been trying to solve the strange phenomenon of peculiar thoughts which beset us in our sleep. There was a time when great significance was attached to dreams, but in these days we pay scant attention to them.

So grotesque and absurd are so many of our dreams that we often are ashamed to speak of them to our friends. Psychologists have long studied the cause of dreams. They have tried to catch themselves dreaming in an attempt to look in on themselves when they were half asleep. They have studied persons asleep in their efforts to ascertain what caused the strange delirium of the mind.

In early history we have stories of dreamers. Early Bible history is full of it. The rulers of Egypt at the time of the building of the pyramids are pictured as having dreams the forum and there saw Julius Caesar, his body filled with dagger wounds.

JOAN OF ARC DREAMS SHE IS LEADER.

Joan of Arc listening to the spirits dreamed she was to lead France and free her land from the yoke of Britain. Firm in the belief the dreams were messages from above she went to the camp and had herself placed at the head of the army. With her mind filled with the things she had seen in dreams she inspired the troops to such deeds of valor that soon she had overcome all opposition.

We are prone to laugh at dreams. "I had a dream last night," says the business man at the club.

"What did you dream?" queries his friend.

"Oh, I dreamed one of the queerest dreams imaginable," says the business man. "I dreamed I went of great import. The Bible story tells of Pharaoh dreaming that seven thin cattle came up out of the Nile and ate seven fat cattle. All the magicians were called in to tell what the dream foretold. None could answer, so Joseph, the Israelite, was taken from prison to tell of the meaning of the dream.

"It means there will be seven years of abundant harvest," said Joseph. "These seven years will be followed by famine."

Without hesitation the mighty monarch began to prepare for the famine. He built large granaries and stored grain to last through the seven lean years. The story tells how for seven years there was more than enough to eat. Then came the seven years of want and Egypt was the only land with plenty of corn.

No wonder the people believed in dreams.

Portia, the wife of Julius Caesar, is another of the great dreamers of history. Just as he was about to start for the Senate the day he was killed by the conspirators, Portia begged him not to go, as she had dreamed she had seen his body lying in the forum. Caesar was unnerved by the dream, but fear that he would seem afraid impelled him to go to his post in spite of the warning.

Soon after he reached the forum he was attacked by Brutus, Cassius and the rest. A half hour later Portia, fearing disaster, went to into the stock exchange and bought heavily. Then the market began to fall away. I began to realize I had made a mistake. In order to cover up I began to sell. I could not sell fast enough. The bottom dropped out of the market, and I was ruined.

"Funny dream," says the friend and they dropped the subject.

The business man goes to the market. If he feels like it he will buy heavily just as though he never had dreamed. The dream means nothing to him. It's just something that passed through his brain in the night. He sees no forecast of the future in it.

In seeking the cause of dreams, Jack London wrote a book, "Before Adam." London explains the dream of falling by saying it was caused by actual occurrences in the days of our ancestors. In those days the human race lived in trees to escape the ravages of the huge animals infesting the earth.

The men slept in the trees and fell. Now a peculiarity of the falling dream is that the dreamer always wakes up before he strikes ground.

"Of course," says London. "Those who struck the ground were killed. They left no progeny to dream about falling from tree tops. Those who woke as they fell and caught branches of the trees were saved. They had children and their children for generations have dreamed of falling."

UPPER left, dreaming she is to ride a hobby horse. Center, dream of the snake woman. Right, Viola Dana taking the part of the girl who dreams in "The Poor Little Rich Girl." Central scene, dreaming of falling. Lower left, a dream of real happiness. Lower right, dreaming of grotesque figures.

The dreamland world is a tremendously interesting world. There we find people and things we never found in real life. The sub-conscious brain omits all the "ifs" and "buts" and whatever may be in the subjunctive mood in our waking state is transferred into the indicate present in the delirium. This accounts for the fact that the blind see, the lame run, the poor are wealthy. The "if I were" is changed in the dream to "I am."

DREAMS OF CHICKENS. WHILE IN LOVE.

Dr. A. A. Brill, Ph. D., M. D., of

New York, an eminent authority of psychology, had a rather interesting experience with one of his patients suffering from extreme moodiness. He prescribed every possible remedy; he even thought of psychoanalysis and with that view, requested her to write out her dream or delirious thoughts and bring them to him for analysis, and as a consequence, received the following:

"I dreamt that I was in a lonely country place and was anxious to reach my home in Leonow or Liconor Hay, but could not get there. Every time I made a move there was a wall in the way. It looked like a street full of walls. My limbs were as heavy as lead. I could only walk very slowly as if I were very weak or very cold. Then there was a flock of chickens, but that seemed to be in a crowded city street and they—the chickens—ran after me, and the biggest of all said something like 'come with me into the park.'"

This dream seems absurd enough, and as the dreamer remarked, "It was so ridiculous that I am ashamed to tell it. Whoever heard of such a thing as chickens talking?" She was assured that it must mean something, and the analysis proceeded. On asking the dreamer what the most vivid part of the dream was, she answered that it was the second part relating to the chickens. When asked to repeat the thoughts evoked by concentrating her mind on the word "chickens" she gave the following:

"I could only see the biggest chicken, all the others seemed blurred; it was unusually big and a very long neck, and it spoke to me, the street recalls where I used to go to school. I graduated from public school when I was 13—the block was always crowded with children from school."

She then began to blush and laugh, and when asked to explain her actions, said, "It recalls the happy school days and when I was young and knew no worries. I even had a beau, a pupil from the male department. There was a male and female department in the same school and most of my girl friends had beaux. We used to meet after school hours and walk home together. My beau's name was F. He was lanky and thin, and the girls used to tease me about him. Whenever they saw him coming they said, 'Hello, here comes your chicken,' that was his nickname among the boys."

On being asked whether she now understood who the chicken in the dream was, she laughingly said: "You don't mean to say the chicken with the long neck was Mr. F?" When asked whether she still kept up her acquaintance with Mr. F, she stated that she had not seen him for the last few months, but prior to that she saw him quite often. On further analysis it was found that this early schoolboy love was still kept up. He had proposed to her no less than three times, but she had never given him any definite answer.

She only "liked" him, and her family opposed him on a point of his financial position. The last time she met him was at a military ball, were relegated to the background.

Miss Eleanor Gates, the author of "The Poor Little Rich Girl," is particularly interested in all these things, especially the one which is the basis of all Freudian deductions, namely, that every delirium represents the fulfillment of a wish or suppressed thought.

A delirium suffered by a school girl chum of hers, who was rich in worldly possessions thought poor in paternal love, suggested the theme and most of the plot for "The Poor Little Rich Girl," and every time she sees Viola Dana enact the part of Gwendolyn in "The Poor Little Rich Girl," she lives the life in fact and fancy of her childhood chum, and with the same deft hand that the famous psychologist, Professor Freud, uses for scientific research, so Miss Gates has analyzed and dramatized her chum's wanderings which from all accounts is as nearly a work of genius as our stage often does.

Her stage heroine's delirium is made up mainly of a kaleidoscopic combination of concrete images which embody literally the notions which have been conveyed to her.
